ADS –The Design Company Hires Mihelic

Greenville, SC (October 2, 2007) – ADS – The Design Company announces the addition of David Mihelic to its production staff.

After several months of contract work, Mihelic joins ADS as a full-time draftsman. He began contracting for the company while completing his Associate in Architectural Engineering Technology at Greenville Technical College. The Associate degree is a two year program which trains students to convert preliminary designs into working drawings and specifications, as well as plan, supervise and estimate the preliminary costs of construction projects.

“Most of our graduates go to work for architects, engineers and contractors doing CAD-related work,” says architect Gene Wilson, Head of the Architecture Dept. at Greenville Tech. “We stay current with the industry and are highly respected within the region for the quality of education we provide. I receive many calls from companies such as ADS who are interested in hiring our graduates, and lately the volume of requests has increased. We have a lot built into our two year degree, and our students are able to succeed from the first day on the job.”

ADS - The Design Company has provided the Southeast with creative residential and commercial designs since 1996. Their work focuses on light commercial projects and high-end custom homes in developments such as the Cliffs Communities, Kingsbridge, Acadia, Cobblestone, Montebello and Claremont.
